Government May Buy Benedictine Hospital Here

to Be Negotiating for Purchase and Turn It Into a Hospital for Disabled War Veterans.

According to a rumor current to the effect that a proposition has been made and negotiations possibly may be under way for the purchase of the Benedictine Hospital by the United States Government for a hospital and sanatorium for soldiers who were disabled in the World War.

The recent addition to the Benedictine Hospital, more than doubling the capacity of the institution, makes it one of the most desirable hospitals in New York state, and its location away from the dust and noise of the busy streets of the city, its high elevation commanding a view of the Catskill mountains, makes it ideal either as a hospital or sanatorium. The staff of doctors and nurses is second to none, and the Benedictine Hospital enjoys a wide reputation for its efficiency in the treatment and care of cases of every kind.

The Benedictine Hospital is owned and conducted by the Sisters of the Benedictine Order, which primary object is one of the teaching orders of the Catholic Church, and the hospital was originally established in Kingston as a sanatorium for members of the order. Its field of useful activity has been extended until now it functions as a hospital which cares for every case requiring surgical attention and every kind of illness except contagious and infectious diseases. The order of the Sisters of St. Benedict maintains a number of hospitals throughout the United States, and is incorporated under the laws of the state of New Jersey.

A part of the money needed for the construction of the recent addition to the Benedictine Hospital was advanced by the Catholic Charities, an organization of Catholic clergy and laity of the Archdiocese of New York, and considerable sums have been contributed locally by Catholics and non-Catholics toward the building and maintenance of the institution.

Confirmation of the rumor that negotiations were under way for the purchase of the hospital by the United States Government could not be obtained. It is said the government would prefer to take over a modern hospital already erected in preference to the long wait necessary to select a site and erect a soldiers' hospital and sanatorium.

C. D. OF A. INITIATION AT Poughkeepsie

Court Santa Maria Has 45 of Its Members Among 400 Present.

Sunday, April 27, thirty five members of Court Santa Maria, 164, Catholic Daughters of America, motored to Poughkeepsie to attend initiation of Court Irenita. When the court was called to order the assemblage numbered four hundred. The court was honored on the occasion by having as guests their National Secretary Miss Kathryn M. Rosney and State Secretary Mrs. Margaret Tynan, both residents of Poughkeepsie. The degree work under the direction of the Grand Regent, Mrs. Margaret Tynan and efficient officers was most beautifully exemplified. At the close of the initiation the national secretary addressed the candidate and members with a very instructive speech which was followed by remarks from visiting officers. By special request of the national and state secretaries, Mrs. William Rieser was asked to favor Court Irenita and visiting sisters with a solo. As usual, she responded in her ever gracious and pleasing manner and again favored all with an encore. The applause given her was tremendous and she proved to be the "Lady of the Day." Grand Regent, Mrs. Margaret Tynan called for a rising vote of thanks to Mrs. Rieser.

When the initiation was completed, the four hundred sisters were ushered into an artistically and beautifully decorated hall to partake of a delicious banquet.

Eight o'clock found the visiting sisters wending their way home, singing the praises of Court Irenita for their unbounded hospitality.

Gregory Gets a Gratifying Reply

Management of New Hotel in New Britain of the Best Says Prominent Citizen.

In reply to a letter sent by John Gregory to Mr. Proctor, a prominent citizen and stockholder in the new hotel recently erected in New Britain, Conn., inquiring as to whether the management of the new hotel at that place was proving satisfactory, the following reply was received:

In the first place let us emphatically state we are very much pleased with our new hotel. It will do a lot for our city, and has already been a civic and social center. If your hotel is to be one of the Colonial chain, and you have any dealings with J. Linfield Daman, you will find him a very fine gentleman in every sense of the word.

We knew to start with that our hotel would be under the management of the American Hotel Corporation, and in knowing that, we are confident that it will be a success. Allow me to add, although I hold no brief over them, that the American Hotel Corporation could build, equip, start and run a hotel on the best possible basis.

Haynes Takes New Swat At Pesky Little Ferments

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 30.—The apple, the peach, the pear, the cherry, and all other manner of fresh fruits, were added today to the prohibition rogue's gallery, alongside such culprits as the little brown jug, the cocktail shaker and the juniper berry.

A ruling handed down by prohibition Commissioner Haynes stated that hereafter it would be unlawful to partake of fruit juices in the home that may have forgotten themselves to such an extent as to ferment. Even the possession of such unfermented juices has become unlawful, the commissioner decided.

Representative Gallivan of Massachusetts, one of the "wet" leaders in congress, waxed caustic today after a strictly law-abiding family, he said, will have to divide itself into day and night watches to keep an eye glued on the cut glass bowl in the center of the table. Just as soon as an apple becomes goggly-eyed, a peach gets tipsy, or a cherry mistakes Tuesday morning for Saturday night—into the garbage can it must go.

Harter, who is seriously ill at his home.

The report of S. D. Scudder, Jr., chairman of the committee on boys' work, was most enthusiastically received, especially the opening sentence in which Mr. Scudder used a bill of fare French word which he pronounced with a marked cigar box Spanish accent, greatly to the joy of the Rotarians. Their joy was unrestrained could be heard several blocks away.

Supreme Court And Grand Jury

310 Cases Docketed, One Preferred—10 Cases For Grand Jury—Form Of Calendar Improved.

The civil calendar for the May term of the Supreme court, which convenes at the court house in this city, Monday May 5, at 2 p. m., the Hon. Joseph Rosch, justice, presiding, contains 310 cases, one being a preferred cause. A grand jury will be in attendance and District Attorney Traver will have about ten cases for the grand jury to investigate. Following along the line of other counties the third judicial district County Clerk John H. Sax has had printed the court calendar in a new form that no doubt will be much more satisfactory than the old form that had been followed in the county for very many years.

The calendar pages are wider, with three causes on a page instead of four as in the old calendars, and there are no ruled lines under the cases listed, but sufficient white space on which notations can be made.

Besides the officers of the court as heretofore there is printed in the fore part of the calendar the names of the elective officers of the county and their principal appointive assistants. The members of the Ulster county bar which have been revised up to date are in larger type and more easily read, and a calendar of the months of the year has been added thus obtaining the necessity of the judge asking on what day a certain date falls on when a motion is made to set down a case for a future date, which heretofore has frequently occurred because no monthly calendar could readily be had.

In the back part of the calendar is a diary for three weeks with the date printed over a blank space sufficient on which attorneys can mark down any case that they have had for the taking up the matter in which they are to appear.

Three to Help in Putting Dawes Plan Into Effect

Members of Railways, Banking and Industries Committees for Supervision in Germany.

By Telegraph to The Freeman. Paris, April 30.—The inter-allied reparations commission today appointed members to three of the committees that will organize German finance, industry and railways under the Dawes plan. The commission urged immediate action, as the opinion is becoming general that the quicker the plan is executed the sooner the Allies will be brought into harmonious relations upon the reparations issue.

The appointments were: Committee to organize German railways—Sir William Aikman and M. Lervere.

Committee to supervise German banking—Sir Robert Kindersley.

Committee to regulate German industrial obligations—Alfred Descamps and Dr. Alberto Parelli.

The committees are not yet complete. Negotiations among the interested governments over the details of the Dawes plan are progressing.

Foreign office officials said that the statement given out by General Charles Gales Dawes and Owen D. Young in New York Tuesday night is "precisely the French view."

They especially endorsed Young's statement that the length of time it will take to put the Dawes plan into effect depends upon the speed made by the reparations commission and the German Reichstag in making appointments and enacting legislation.

Officials said France desires to cooperate to speed up the execution of the plan.

Wands Protests Daylight Time

Kingston, N. Y., April 29, 1924.

Editor, The Freeman

In re the daylight saving time (so called or mis-called), permit a constant reader to call attention to a few facts concerning it. The majority of Kingston residents have meekly bowed to what they tell us is a law of our common council, seemingly as unchangeable as the laws of the Medes and Persians, at least until the common council shall decide to repeal it, and the majority seem to believe it to be a positive fact that it is a law, and as law abiding citizens they meekly bend to its decrees, not because they like it, but because they suppose themselves to be helplessly bound to its terms. Of course, some people like it, but it is very doubtful if the majority does.

Now the fact is, it has never been a law, but merely a resolution of the board of aldermen, enacted as a voluntary measure, when every patriotic citizen approved it.

But it never was intended to be perpetual, and if it was so intended, it was an assumption of authority clearly beyond the prerogative of a common council.

Any lawyer will tell you that to constitute a law, there must be some enforcement clause attached, or some penalty for violation of its provisions, and in the absence of such provisions such an act is nothing more than a resolution of recommendation.

Consequently, it is not, and never was a law, and requires no repealing act. The only effective repeal is in the hands of the people themselves, and the only way to give expression to such repeal is to ignore its provisions singly and collectively.

Every factory and every firm could decide the question for themselves without violating any law and within their sovereign rights.

But isn't it funny when you come to think of it, how easy it is to jolly the people, especially if the public press take a hand in it? However, as Uncle Sam says, "You can fool all people part of the time, and part of the people all the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time."

Evidently there is some defect in all these unseemly conditions, and as Shakespeare says: "We seek the cause of this defect, and this effect, detective, comes by cause," and the cause is not that we require this extra hour in the evenings to work our back yard gardens as in war time, but that we require it now for ball games and joy rides, all of which has our approval in so far as it does not encroach too much on the privilege of the mothers and housewives in their enjoyment of that best of all hour's rest, the early morning hour, and believe me, this is no light consideration. We believe that if our wives and mothers could express themselves upon this point, this daylight saving (that saves nothing) would be relegated to the realms of innocuous desuetude.

Now, what is a fair conclusion? Either that some Joshua of our common council that has power like the original Joshua had to cause the sun to stand still, or move back ten degrees on the dial to give him time to lick the Amorites, or if not able to do so, to drop back to the ancient God given rule when the sun (and not the common council) ruled the day, and the moon and stars the night. Either this, or else go back and enact a real law (superior to God's law if possible) and put some teeth into it similar to the Volstead law, even if they have to put a husky policeman on every block to drag the people out of their beds one hour at least before proper rising time.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 30, 1924.

President Coolidge talks in the language of the people and can be thoroughly understood. He is one of the shining exhibits of the college man who learned something in college. Among the things he acquired was common sense. He could probably change his diction so that it would not be understood without an interpreter, but he realizes the people have a right to know what their president is saying.

Begin right now and enjoy as much as you can of every nice day that comes along. May and June are beautiful months for anything one wants to do out of doors. The worst of it is, however, too many of us keep putting off this, that or the other thing that we were going to do on the first nice day, and the next thing we know the summer is over and it is too late. Time flies so fast that we should not let procrastination deprive us of a lot of fun.

GOOD FOR "YONSON."

Senator Magnus Johnson boasted to his hyphenated folks back home in Minnesota that when he went to Washington he would "straighten out" the Senate and make those "big fellows" like Lodge sit up and take notice, but after he reached the Capital he got into the papers only in connection with his cow-milking and wood-chopping contests. For a long time nothing more was heard from him, but the other day he came to the front. Senator Hefflin of Alabama was discussing the pending immigration bill and orating on the "Nordic" theme now so much in vogue, making it quite plain that, though he is himself a Southerner in this country, he will have none of the Southerner in Europe. Then, as soon as there was opportunity, the big voice of Senator Magnus Johnson sounded as follows:

Mr. President, the gentleman from Alabama wants to restrict immigration. And some of the Senators want to discriminate between the people of the north and south of Europe. But I came over as an immigrant from Sweden, and while it might be good politics for me to stand up and claim that the immigrants from Sweden and Norway and the slums of London are better than those from the country that gave the world Columbus and Marconi, I don't care for politics. I'll tell the truth. There are good ones and bad ones from all nations.

Good for Magnus. He can not match English with the "big fellows" of the Senate whom he too readily and fatuously expected to "straighten out," but he spoke to the point. After all, there is something in him, even if he does play to the gallery back home by milking cows in Washington and can do no other than call himself "Yonson."

FORGOT TO KEYNOTE.

D-Cady Herick of Albany was selected to deliver a keynote speech at the Democratic state convention. Whether he hit the keynote remains to be determined. At any rate, some of Governor Smith's most pronounced ideas were omitted. Two years ago the people who heard the governor talk were convinced that were he elected beer would be plentiful. But it did not come, and the New York Tribune, in referring to the implied promise, quoted some former Smith shouters as saying, "Al promised us schooners of beer but all we got were resolutions."

The Albany orator apparently forgot all about Governor Smith's attitude on beer and wine for he did not refer in any way to that question. He must have forgotten it for in the face of what Governor Smith has said the chairman would have touched on it in some manner. In Troy last fall Governor Smith said he had tried to do what he could to give the people beer and light wine. Now, strange as it may seem, everything the governor ever said on beer and wine is overlooked by Chairman Herick, who is recognized as a good lawyer, and good lawyers rarely unintentionally forget.

Many of the newspapers called attention to the noticeable absence of any mention of beer in the chairman's declaration of principles enunciated for such use as they might be in the Democratic platform. That Chairman Herick failed to say anything about beer and booze was actually so plain that his silence was significant, almost loud, knowing, as he must have known, Governor Smith's liking for a wet platform. Pinned down to it, the governor does not deny his position, and that Chairman Herick did not include any reference to the wet and dry problem naturally caused comment. Governor Smith's qualifications, except that of his liking for a wet platform, were emphasized by Chairman Herick and dwelt upon at length. While the omission of anything relating to wine and beer may have been accidental, it was nevertheless interesting. Under the circumstances, as it might be construed, the chairman chosen to deliver the keynote speech left out the keynote, and, as the Ogdensburg Journal says, "It was very careless of Mr. Herick."

THE SUBSTITUTE FOR GOLF.

Golf clubs are so numerous these days that one might get the idea that everybody plays golf.

And yet when you come to think about it, a golf club can have but a few hundred members at most.

This means that the largest city with thirty clubs down to the small town with but one, really touch less than one in a hundred of their population.

I don't want to talk about golf this time except to say that it is a wonderful outdoor game. If you are willing to acquire the art gradually and naturally, and not keep too tensed all the time trying to remember all your instructions.

What I had in mind was the individual who didn't play golf, because of lack of time or money.

The big benefit from golf is the walking in the outdoor air. You walk because you have something to make you walk. There is an incentive. You are just the sort of an individual that wouldn't walk three miles in a week, and yet you'll cover the three or more miles of the course during a game, and think nothing of it.

And what about you, who do not play?

You can't get the mental relaxation, that should, but doesn't always come, with golf.

But if you can't afford the time or money surely you can supply your own incentive.

And what is that?

That you'll get just what the golf enthusiast is really after. That is good health, through outdoor exercise.

And my suggestion is what?

That as you can't spare a couple of hours or an afternoon for golf two or three days a week, that you can get just as much exercise and in the outdoors also, by a very simple method.

Simply decide that you'll walk daily to and from the office, store, or factory, or if the distance is too great then a part of the way.

Don't just amble along, but step out at a brisk pace, making your stride just a few inches more than usual by swinging the legs from the hips, with a little less bending at the knees.

What is this going to do for you?

Well, the only thing that Nature has provided to purify your blood and to burn up the wastes in your body is the oxygen in the air.

The heavy meal you ate at dinner time last night, or the extra food you took at bedtime, or at a party, has had no chance to be properly used, because you've been lying in bed all night. It has been deposited in your tissues as fat, some in the intestine as waste matter, and the blood is still carrying some of it around.

You take that morning and evening walk and what happens? If you are fat some of your fat is used up. If you are thin some of the material in the blood goes to make some muscle for you by means of the exercise of walking. Remember—You have a real incentive—Good Health.

U. S. Department Urges More Houses for Birds

Birds may be gathered about us in all seasons of the year with ease and safety, according to a bulletin from the Department of Agriculture, merely offering what they desire. In winter they are often pushed for food, and if we supply this need, they will report daily at the lunch counter and help to relieve the tedium of our indoor life.

In summer they care less for food provided by their human friends, and other means must be sought to attract them about the home. They appreciate fresh water for bathing and drinking. A shallow pool of varying depth, only a foot across, becomes a hot spot of attraction for all the birds in the vicinity, and it may be made with little effort and material. A small quantity of cement is required, or if that is lacking, a pan of tin or other material will do equally serviceable.

Caught His Foot In Turn Table

Thomas Hughes of No. 235 Hasbrouck avenue, a machinist's helper at the Ulster & Delaware railroad shops on the Strand, had part of his foot amputated at the Kingston City Hospital Tuesday evening as the result of an accident at the yard about 7:30 o'clock. Hughes caught his foot between the rails on the turn table as it was being operated and it was so badly mangled that Dr. A. A. Stern was forced to operate. The injured man was hurried to the hospital in the city ambulance. The turn table is used to turn engines around in the railroad yard.

MISSING STICK PIN FOUND IN DOG'S FOOT

For several days past former Alderman William Du Fon of No. 143 Chilton avenue, has been searching for his diamond stick pin which had mysteriously disappeared. When his duties as foreman of The Freeman Publishing Company ceased up he spent the time in the composing room hunting for the pin thinking it might have fallen from his tie while at work getting out the newspaper.

Tuesday night he sat in the sitting room of his home reading. From time to time he would drop the paper to his lap and muse over the remarkable disappearance of the stick pin. His meditations were suddenly broken when his pet dog limped into the room and leaning its head on the former alderman's knee looked pitifully up into Mr. Du Fon's eyes and moaned.

"What's the trouble, old chap?" asked the former alderman stroking the dog's head.

A dismal howl was the only reply and the dog dropped to the floor and rolled over on its back with paws extended in the air. As it did so the former alderman caught a sparkle of light.

"It's impossible," he gasped, "it can't be."

But it was. The dog, just walking about the house or yard had stepped onto the lost pin running it deep into his paw. Mr. Du Fon removed the pin as he had some previous experience in slight surgical affairs, and applied some iodine to the dog's wounded paw.

Imagination Stirred by Problems of Great Spaces

I have no doubt star gazing is a fine occupation, for it leads you within the borders of the unattainable. But map gazing, to which I became addicted early, brings the problems of the great spaces of the earth into stimulating and directive contact with sane curiosity and gives an honest precision to one's imaginative faculty, writes Joseph Conrad in the National Geographic Magazine.

And the honest maps of the Nineteenth century nourished in me a passionate interest in the truth of geographical facts and a desire for precise knowledge which was extended later to other subjects.

From the middle of the Eighteenth century on, the business of map making had been growing into an honest occupation, registering the hard-won knowledge, but also, in a scientific spirit, recording the geographical ignorance of its time.

And it was Africa, the continent out of which the Romans used to say some new thing was always coming, that got cleared of the dull imaginary wonders of the Dark Ages, which were replaced by exciting spaces of white paper. Regions unknown! My imagination could depict to itself these wondrous, adventurous men nibbling at the edges, attacking from north and south and east and west, conquering a bit of truth here and a bit of truth there and sometimes swallowed up by the mystery their hearts were so persistently set on unravelling.

"Brush" Used for Removing Deposits From Ship's Hull

It is reported that an Australian company has introduced in England an ingenious method of cleaning the outside of the hull of a ship. The invention has been in successful operation for a number of years in Australia and has been tried at Southampton and Plymouth.

The apparatus is mounted upon a suitable frame which can be suspended from the side of a boat. It consists of a cylindrical brush about five or six feet in length, held in a framework which also supports an electric motor and a propeller. The purpose of the propeller is to keep the brush pressed against the side of the ship. The case carrying the apparatus contains also a four-cylinder petroleum motor directly coupled to a dynamo. The current produced serves to raise and lower the carrying frame as well as to drive the propeller and brush. As the appliance operates under water the motor and gearing are inclosed in a water-tight box. The machine is capable of removing the thickest deposits and can thoroughly clean the hull of an 8,000-ton ship in from six to seven hours.

Flea's Wonderful Eyesight
Fleas have far better sight than men. A German scientist who has been investigating fleas makes this disclosure, saying their sight is so sharp that when a man is sleeping at night under a blanket in a darkened room his body glows to a flea as brightly as a red-hot stove appears to a man in a darkened room. Man is far behind many animals in both sight and hearing, the scientist finds; the human ear catches only a small percentage of the myriad sound waves and as human eyes do not react to ultra-violet beams which are lost to man which reaches eyes of a lower order.

WHERE HOOKED FISH IS PREY OF OTHERS

Anglers in Gulf Stream Often Find Catch Is Robbed

Visitors in Florida send numerous big fish stories back to the homefolk, and in many cases the homefolk are inclined to sniff. No sniffing is called for. Inland residents can hardly realize the abundance of fish in the warm waters of the ocean.

Along all the ocean front of the southern resort cities, motor boats 20 or 25 feet long can be hired with the skipper and tackle and bait for about $25 a day to go out toward the Gulf Stream three or four miles to fish. The skippers know where the fish are to be found. The visitor merely specifies the fish he wishes to catch. In an hour the boat can be at the fishing grounds.

A strip of fish is put on the hook and the motor boat moves along slowly. The angler may have 75 or 100 feet of line out, and he wonders how he can tell when he gets a bite, with the boat rising and falling on the waves. Sea fish are game fish. When one strikes, the angler gets the idea that his hook has suddenly caught on a submerged log, so fierce is the tug. He has hooked a kingfish, a variety of the mackerel. The line is reeled in. Suddenly the fish has another idea, and away he goes for fifty feet or so. In comes the fish again. Meanwhile the boat owner, who usually keeps all but one of the fish and sells them, maneuvers the boat to aid the angler. In perhaps five or six minutes the fish is tired, but still struggling. The angler gets the fish close enough to see that it is a pretty fair size. He begins to wonder what will happen when he is brought closer to the boat. Then the line goes slack and is pulled in easily.

Some larger fish has rushed up to the hooked kingfish and taken a bite at him, leaving little more than the head and shoulders on the line. This is quite common. One man who was out three hours on a rough day off Miami says that he hooked eight kingfish, but two of them were bitten in two and another one was seized by a barracuda, a porpoise or some other bigger fish, and carried out to sea 200 feet. The bigger fish, grouper, sailfish and amberjack and sharks, are caught farther away from the shore. But any southern water fish tale is likely to resist the efforts of the most proficient liar in amplifying it.—Indianapolis News

Sure Thing

Mr. Ives accompanied his wife on a shopping expedition and had seated himself at one end of the coat department while Mrs. Ives was looking over the garments. Suddenly he became aware of the fact that his wife was not to be seen. Walking up to the floorwalker he said:

"Just start talking to one of the pretty saleswomen here and I think your wife will soon put in an appearance."—Judge

Might Lose Out

Arriving at a winter resort, a millionaire made inquiries at a fashionable hotel and was given a suite at a very reasonable rate. A few minutes later the proprietor noted this and took the room clerk to task.

"Why did you make the rate so moderate?" demanded the boss. "Don't you know that man came here in his own private car?"

"I know that," answered the clerk, "and I was afraid he might decide to sleep in it."

Money Satisfactory

"Here is that suit I bought of you last week," said the angry customer to the tailor. "You said you would return my money if it was not satisfactory."

"That's what I said," responded the polite tailor rubbing his hands, "but I am happy to tell you that I found the money to be entirely satisfactory."

Your Hairs Are Numbered

Fair haired people usually have between 140,000 and 160,000 hairs on the scalp. Dark-haired people have on an average about 105,000 while red-haired people are said to have only 30,000 hairs. But the latter apparently possess one great advantage in the fact that they seldom become bald.

Imitations of Nature

Man's imitations are frequently only imitations, more or less clumsy, of nature's own devices. It would appear, for instance, that even insects have some knowledge of acoustics. Entomologists have found on the under side of the forewings of two Japanese insects of the families cleatris, a curious pit or hollow, closely connected with an organ believed to be used by the insect for producing sound. The pit would evidently serve to concentrate the sound of the shell-shaped orchestra stands and reflect the melody of the instruments to the ears of the auditors.

In the Khari hills of India another species of the same insect has been found which possesses a similar set of organs. The shrill, creaking sounds that insects produce seldom fall pleasantly upon our ears, but they must produce a different effect on the insect world else nature would hardly have provided these little musicians with sounding boards.

Three-Wheeled Automobile

The three-wheeled automobile is growing in popularity in Europe. There are today in Europe seven manufacturers of the three-wheeler. This machine is not to be mistaken for the side car, from which it differs in having a roomy body like an ordinary automobile, the difference being that one wheel at the rear supplies the tractive power. The three-wheeler, in competition with the motorcycle combination and four-wheelers, has won 23 gold medals, and 15 silver medals in meets. It holds an economy record of 67.1 miles per gallon, also a speed record of 82.2 miles an hour.—Scientific American.

Touching Wood Old Custom

Many persons, whether they are superstitious or not, conform to the habit of "touching wood" to erase the "curse" of bragging of good luck. The origin of this custom dates back to the time of the worshippers among the Aryans, and the practice was carried down through the Egyptians, Etruscans, Greeks, Romans and modern Europeans. It is a custom more universal in Europe, of course, than in America.

An Honest Opinion

A business man on retiring, wrote a book which he sent to a publisher. The latter promptly returned it. Considerably incensed, the author sent his work to a friend in a newspaper office, writing on a top corner of the manuscript "What do you think I ought to get for this?" The friend returned the manuscript with the laconic reply written in the opposite corner: "Five years!"

In Wrong Both Times

THE WINDOWS

"I don't think," said the dining-room window on the right, "that people appreciate us."

"It is Their Fault!"

"You don't," said the dining-room window on the left, "and I don't either."

"I wonder," said the dining-room window on the right, "if you have been thinking what I have been thinking."

"I don't know," said the dining-room window on the left, "but if you tell me of what you have been thinking then I can tell you."

"Yes, then I can tell you."

"Well," said the dining-room window on the right, "I've been thinking what a pity it was that people didn't appreciate us in the way of giving us a little praise for all we help them to see."

"They look out of us and they become very much interested in what is going on down the street or up the street or across the street."

"They look out of us and see whether it is raining or whether the sun is shining."

"They look out of us and see all sorts of delightful and funny and interesting things but they don't say: 'Windows, you are such a help!'"

"They don't say a word more for us than they do for walls. And they can't see out of walls and walls aren't always the same."

"Of course we are always the same in a way, too, but yet we are able to let them see all sorts of different things."

"Walls stay the same—unless they're repainted or repapered or something of that sort. But one day they can look out of us and see a great down-pour and the next they can see a sunny day."

"In the winter they can see the snow on the ground and on the trees, and in the summer they can see the green leaves—though in the summer they open us all the way up or more than they do in the winter."

"Sometimes they complain if we're dirty and that is not our fault."

"We can't wash ourselves but we're always ready to be washed."

"No one ever heard a window scream or shriek or whine."

"I don't want to be washed! I don't want to be washed!"

"No, no one ever heard a window say that. So when they complain that we are dirty it is their fault and not ours."

"But dear me, we have feelings. If anyone gives us an awful knock or throws something at us we will break—we have sensitive feelings like that."

"People, really, should say something kind about the way we give them so much pleasure."

"Just what I have been thinking," said the dining-room window on the left. "Yes, just what I have been thinking for a long time, the dining-room window on the left said again."

"People really should appreciate us by saying something nice about us once in a while."

"Just once in a while, that would do," said the dining-room window on the right.

Must Eat Her Egg

"Mamma, I can't eat this boiled egg," said a little girl at a seaside hotel.

"You can and you will eat it," snapped the little girl's mother. "You are always complaining about your food. Eat your egg at once or go upstairs and to bed for the day."

The little girl, in rueful silence, tackled her egg. Several minutes passed. Then she looked up piteously and asked:

"Mamma, must I eat the beak, too?"

Why?

A little girl who had been besieging her grandfather with an endless succession of questions during the evening had still one more question to ask before she went to bed.

"Granddad," she said, "were you in the ark?"

"Why, no," he exclaimed, smilingly. "Then," she said, regarding him with innocent wonder, "why weren't you drowned?"

HELPFUL HINTS

The leather cushions of chairs and couches may be treated with the ordinary tan or black shoe dressing, the cleanser and the polishing wax. Rub it in with vigor and scratches and stains will disappear, the leather be preserved and made to look like new.

A large pink-lined sea shell filled with earth will hold a bunch of pansies or violets, making a beautiful gift for a sick friend. Even a small fern will find a pleasant home in such a receptacle.

House ferns if set in a pan of quite warm water once a week will put forth new fronds very soon. Water ferns or any plant with water used to rinse meat—if that is ever done in your household. If a damp cloth is used, which is the best method for wiping meat, rinse it in soft water and use the water on the plants.

Use any small amounts of paint left over to paint the inside of the garbage can. It will keep it from rusting.

To mend old cloth, linen or cotton that has become cracked, place a strip of adhesive tape under the broken edges, binding them together, then put under a weight to dry.

When removing wall paper, wet with a thin paste—it will not dry so quickly as clear water and the paper quickly peels when scraped.

Rugs that turn up at the corners may be moistened with thick starch. When rugs slip and slide, sew strips of old rubber to the sides or corners.

Casters which drop out of furniture may be made to stay by pouring hot paraffin into the socket and then replacing the caster while the paraffin is hot.

Leftover pancakes may be broken into bits and added to the next day's griddle cake batter. Improving the mixture. Added to scrambled eggs it makes a good supper dish.

Renew old brushes after washing by dipping them into strong alum water. An old wire hairbrush is a fine thing to use to comb the carpet sweeper brush.

You'll Like Its Looks and Praise Its Power

HERE is the reason for the wonderful popularity of this new Cleveland Six model:

It carries the lowest price ever placed on a 5-passenger sedan that has plenty of power, genuine good looks and substantial construction throughout.

It all comes down to a matter of dollars and cents.

Sensible folks cannot be argued into paying more than $1295 for a 5-passenger 6-cylinder sedan—

—when for $1295 they can enjoy the comfort and relaxation of a roomy Fisher body, the power and pep of the finest performing motor in the whole light six field, and the dependability that they know they always get in a Cleveland Six.

Prove this by driving this new model yourself.

Watch how easily it passes bigger and costlier cars on hills—how swiftly and smoothly it accelerates.

That's the low torque power of the Cleveland Six motor—the extra power where power counts.

Note the beauty of the body lines—the brilliant finish that comes from seventeen painting operations—the wide, low seats—the deep upholstery—the smart appointments.

It's today's best buy in closed cars—a value that speaks for itself!

Genuine super-size balloon tires (31 x 5 1/2) optional, $70 extra. Cleveland chassis design permits their use without affecting road, frame, or fender clearance.

Gum Chewing Aids the Teeth

You have the authority of doctors and dentists for this statement. Your own experience will prove it, if you will use WRIGLEY'S after every meal.

The following quotations from a recent work on teeth and health are worth remembering:

"Dentists have found that the exercise of gum chewing brings about a better nutrition of the teeth."

"The cleansing action of the gum between the teeth helps to keep them free from the particles which lodge in the crevices and cause decay."

The busy man—or woman either—rarely has time to clean the teeth after eating. Yet they should be cleaned, and

Will Draft New Bus Ordinance

Corporation Counsel James Jenkins to Prepare a Tentative One to Be Submitted at Next Council Session—Bus Committee and Owners Met.

Following a hearing attended by the bus owners operating bus lines out of Kingston and the bus committee of the common council held Tuesday evening at the city hall Alderman J. Phillip Belcher, chairman of the committee, requested Corporation Counsel James Jenkins, who was present at the hearing, to prepare a tentative new bus ordinance to be submitted at the next meeting of the common council.

It seemed to be the impression among the bus owners that a bill had been passed by the legislature at Albany and signed that day by the governor making it compulsory for all bus owners to carry liability insurance on each bus operated. If no such bill was passed and signed Kingston's new bus ordinance will contain a provision making it compulsory for bus owners to carry liability insurance.

W. H. Rudderham, manager of the Van Wagenen store on Wall street, was present at the meeting and said he believed the bus owners should set together and form an organization. Here was $150,000 invested in the bus business, and it was allowed to run wild. There was not that amount of stock carried in the Van Wagenen store. If he had a complaint to make regarding bus service he would not know who to make it to as the bus owners were unorganized.

Alderman Belcher said that the bus committee had adjourned until that evening to give the bus owners a chance to form some sort of an organization. Last year they had formed an organization and elected officers, but it had proved but a gesture.

Miss Curtair, one of the proprietors of the hotel on Railroad avenue in which is located the central bus terminal, was present and said that the bus owners should engage some man to act as caretaker of the terminal and that a telephone should also be installed. She said that she did not care to be annoyed on the telephone fifty times a day answering questions as to when the busses left. There were no time tables at the terminal and there should be.

Chairs she had placed in the terminal room had been broken and the toilet had been stopped up with waste clothes. If conditions were going to continue as at present she would not care to have the terminal located at the hotel.

E. J. Ritch, one of the bus men, said he had heard a lot about chairs being broken and toilets stopped up but could anyone prove it was the bus men; might it not have been outsiders?

Miss Curtair said she was not accusing the bus owners, but there certainly should be a caretaker at the terminal to remedy conditions and keep the room cleaned up.

Mr. Klem, of the Saugerties line, said that he believed the solution of the problem was the erection of a proper terminal building similar to that in Poughkeepsie. The business men of the city should furnish the bus men with a terminal. The busses were bringing business into the city that never came here before and that fact should be appreciated. If the business men and Chamber of Commerce in Poughkeepsie could erect a terminal he did not see why it could not be done in Kingston.

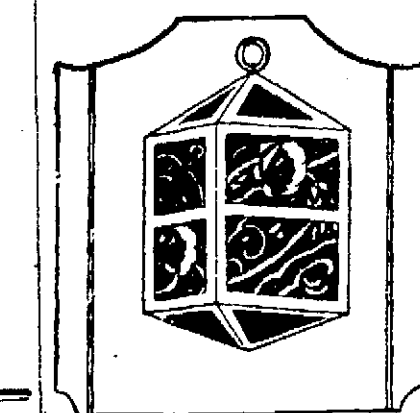

Alderman Belcher said that conditions in Poughkeepsie were not the same as in Kingston. Here it was necessary to have three bus terminals. The city paid the rent of one; the Chamber of Commerce another; and the bus owners the rent of the third terminal. He believed that Kingston was doing its part for the bus lines.

Another of the bus owners said that as far as time tables were concerned, he printed tables twice a year, but even then his telephone at his home constantly rang asking information as to when busses left. People have the time tables and yet they will call up on the telephone.

It was brought out that some packages left at the central terminal for bus lines had lain there some time and also that recently a package of tobacco valued at $100 had mysteriously disappeared.

Mayor Block, who was present at the hearing, believed that if the time tables were distributed among the business houses and hotels that much of the difficulty would be overcome.

After some further discussion, Alderman Belcher declared the hearing adjourned. The new bus ordinance will be prepared and submitted to the common council and later a public hearing will be held on it before it is finally adopted.

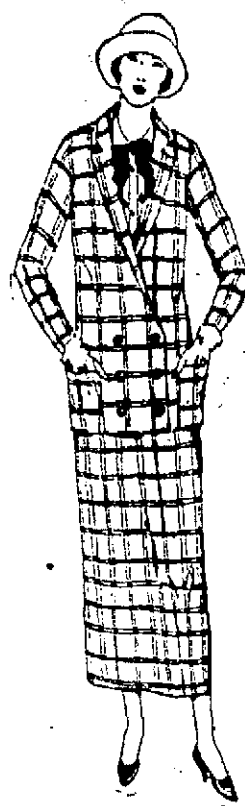

To make this gay lantern, cut a frame from cardboard or wood, cover with water color paper, glue in place, then paint a solid color with contrasting border, and stencil upon it a flower design in colors. A coat of varnish over the whole will preserve the life of the lantern.

WOMAN DIVES FOR VAST TREASURES IN SPANISH GALLEON.

Margaret Naylor, Great Britain's first woman deep-sea diver, is making renewed attempts to get 10,000,000 gold "pieces of eight" from the Spanish galleon "Admiral of Florence," sunk in Tobermory Bay, on the west coast of Scotland, in November, 1558. In 1913 Colonel Foss recovered pewter dishes, coins and other relics from the wreck. Miss Naylor has found that three feet of clay cover the poop of the ship. This will be sluiced away and an attempt made to raise the vessel. This photographic representation of a historic painting shows how the galleon appeared before it went down. This oyster, recently recovered from the ship, is the oldest in the world. Oysters were imported from South America at the time of the Spanish Armada, and the commander of the galleon had a supply on board when his ship went down.

The Great Crime Of the Rotarians

It Consists in Being Human, Having a Weekly Hour of Relaxation and Doing Good Deeds for Others.

Under the heading, "Rotary and the Younger Set," the New York Tribune, receiving "highbrow" criticisms of Rotary and kindred clubs, such as Kiwanis, the Lions, etc., says:

Long before "Main Street" was written and the Younger Intellectual Anti-Boob Cult began its present active career, George Cohan, then a minor poet of Forty-second street, wrote and acted in a satirical comedy entitled, "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway." Mr. Cohan had real feeling for the city lights and asphalt, he sang with the lyric and insular conviction of some chansonnier of Montmartre, and proved to his own satisfaction and that of delighted audiences of Manhattanese that everything beyond the Harlem and North rivers was a wilderness and a howling.

The gasconading Mr. Mencken and the astringent younger essayists who follow somewhat breathlessly in his wake are, of course, the lineal literary descendants of Mr. Cohan—without the music and the fun. Most of them were still rolling hoops and blowing soap-bubbles when "Forty-five Minutes From Broadway" was written, but memory constantly reverts to that amusing piece as one peruses their naive comments on what they fancy life to be in the American "provinces."

Among the taboos is something called "Rotary," the mere mention of which is enough to induce in them an instant and acute neurosis. Just what image this phrase arouses in their minds is not altogether clear, but apparently they visualize a sort of star chamber or conclave of super-Babbitts (or perhaps mere "business men," would be sufficiently inflaming) engaged in a conspirative attack on all that is beautiful and good.

While these curious psychoses have as little relation to actuality as did Mr. Cohan's more diverting fancies about what went on west of Hahway, their frequency and solemnity seem to justify some slight examination of their cause. In short, what is a Rotary Club and what is its function in the average small Western city?

Briefly, and putting the thing in human terms, apart from constitutions, by-laws and the like, it is the small-town man's substitute for the innumerable contacts and stimulations which, in the big city, can scarcely be escaped. These withering young essayists, in the mere week's work, will lunch at a college club one day, and with authors and artists the next; sniff the air of millions with some Wall street friend at the Bankers Club and next day go abroad at home with some ship-captain acquaintance aboard ship in Hoboken or the North river. The small-town Rotarian, on the other hand, beats an almost unbroken path to and from the widget factory (as they say in "Beggars on Horseback") and his own door. Instead of six amusing glimpses of another world a week he has but one. In a scant hour and a half, at his weekly Rotary lunch, he rather pathetically endeavors, by clapping his friends on the back and calling them by their first names, by listening to a talk on fish conservation or the future of the gasoline industry, by singing at the top of his lungs "I've Been Workin' on de Railroad" or "Sweet Angelina," to capture the "release" which the essayists of the Anti-Everything School receive without effort, in the intervals of even more exciting urban diversions. That, as a rule, is the sinister function of Rotary.

In addition, of course, in scores of the smaller cities it is one of the really practical machines for getting things started or done. It includes doctors, lawyers, preachers, and newspaper men, as well as widget manufacturers, and pretty well touches the whole town and is touched in turn. And if State Street needs to be paved or Main street widened, the High School principal backed up in his fight with the City Hall gang, or a lot of children given a tree and presents at Christmas time who would otherwise have no Christmas at all, the thing only needs to be taken up by the Rotarians and the chances are that something will happen. But such actual doing of things, instead of talking about them, naturally says nothing to the Anti-Everythingers.

If the roles were shifted and these literary irreconcilables forced to join the widget industry they would, after six months, no sooner think of missing their weekly Rotary luncheon than of foregoing, well, let us say, their last copy of "The American Mercury"—nor as soon. This profound truth is revealed merely out of justice to the Rotarians and not with the intention of reducing the visible output of criticism. There is none too much satire of ourselves in this country, and if it can be written with sufficient fierceness it may even serve, now and then, to lighten the dull round of the Rotarians themselves.

KINGSTON IS GROWING— Kingston Must Have A New Modern Hotel!

Repeated surveys of the hotel situation have proved that a modern hotel with approximately one hundred twenty-five rooms is required to meet our present day needs. A modern hotel will bring visitors, tourists, traders, and convention delegates to our city. It will add to the business growth and oftentimes bring visitors back who will invest capital and become permanent residents. Conventions are becoming more popular each year. Conventions will help Kingston grow.

Conventions enough can be brought to Kingston to keep all hotels busy. Kingston has not had conventions in the past because she has not had the facilities to accommodate them. This has actually cost the merchants, in fact all business men, a large amount of business, for conventions do bring delegates with full purses.

The tourist and his party buy clothing, food-stuffs and many other articles. A dollar spent by him passes from one to another and reaches every class of trade and activity in our community. It is essential that the hotel accommodations be so inviting that the traveler will be favorably impressed and remain here a sufficient length of time to learn of Kingston's possibilities, both residential and industrial.

These visitors, great numbers of them, will help make Kingston's New Hotel a decidedly paying investment from every standpoint.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

OPERA IN ENGLISH

The first to successfully produce standard grand operas in English was Carl August Nicholas Rosa, a German musician, who died in Paris thirty five years ago today, April 30, 1889. Rosa was born in Ham-burg in 1813 and was educated at the Leipzig Conservatory. He became one of the greatest violinists of his time, and traveled all over England and America. In 1869 Rosa and his wife, Euphrosyne Parepa Rosa, a noted singer, organized an English opera company, which was well received in England and made three American tours. Mme. Rosa, who was a native of Edinburgh, died in 1874. After the death of his wife and partner Rosa continued in English opera, with a large measure of success, and, besides the standard operas, introduced many new pieces to London. The first important English opera was John Gay's

"The Beggar's Opera," a satire against the government of Sir Robert Walpole, which had a run of sixty-three nights in London in 1727, and was performed in New York in 1750. After the revolution English opera had a fitful existence in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Charleston. The first distinctive American opera was John Howard Payne's "Clari, the Maid of Milan," which was produced in 1823 and contained the immortal "Home, Sweet Home."

"THE HOTTENTOT VENUS"

During the early part of the last century there was exhibited in London a woman brought from the African jungle who gained fame under the name of "The Hottentot Venus" and on whose account suit was brought before the Lord Chancellor of Great Britain. The woman was captured in Africa forced aboard a ship and brought to England for exhibition purposes. She attracted immense crowds but her condition made her the object of pity among many who came to see her. It was evident that she was a prisoner and exhibited against her will. The Attorney-General took steps to have her released, but before anything could be done, she, as well as her exhibitors, disappeared.

SILK HOSIERY.

It was on April 30, 1560, just 364 years ago today that what is so popular, indeed so essential to ladies comfort—namely, silk hosiery—was first mentioned in any English chronicle, when Sir Thomas Gresham wrote from Antwerp to Sir William Cecil, Queen Elizabeth's minister, that he had succeeded in procuring from Spain some black silk hose. The manufacture of silk hosiery seems to have originated in Spain and spread thence to France, but until 1560 even English royalty wore stockings of woolen cloth.

In the second year of Queen Elizabeth's reign she received as a gift her first pair of silk stockings. An ancient chronicler says: "Indeed," quoth the Queen, "like silk stockings so well that because they are pleasant, fine and delicate, that henceforth I will wear no more cloth stockings." The writer adds—"and from that time to her death the Queen never wore cloth hose, but only silk stockings." For many years a pair of long

Spanish silk stockings were considered a remarkable and precious gift, and it was not until well into the 17th century that hosiery of silk became at all common, even among the very wealthy.

Young Fitzsimmons Much Unlike Father

Young Bob Fitzsimmons is the very antithesis of his famous father who at one time was heavyweight champion of the world.

The son lacks his father's looks and punch. He fights with the hysteria of one who fears he will get knocked out himself. He cannot punch and appears to be unable to take punishment. Young Bob is skilled in defense and that is all. Could he hit like Old Bob, he would make some progress in the ring.

English Marquis Pleases by His Efforts in Ring

The marquis of Clydesdale, the duke of Hamilton's eldest son, boxed at Bermondsey, near London, recently, and was cheered to the echo by thousands of delighted dock workers.

His opponent, E. K. Lucas, captain of the Hay's Wharf Boxing club, was down once for a count of seven seconds. It was in the third of six two-minute rounds.

The boxing marquis had punished him severely with a fusillade of right leads to the body, and the crowd cheered themselves hoarse.

"It was one of the most sportsman-like crowds I have ever fought before," said the marquis of Clydesdale after the fight, which he won on points. "It is my ambition to become a champion amateur boxer, and I hope to be selected for the Olympic team," he added.

Lucas said of the marquis: "His right hand punches on the body were terrific. He was the better man, and I never want to meet a cleaner boxer."

Several World's Marks Predicted in Olympics

The running track, on which the Olympic events will be decided, should prove very fast. The course is 500 meters to the lap, with a 150-meter straightaway, each curve measuring nearly 100 meters in length.

The track also will be considerably wider than the one at Antwerp, and a special curve constructed for the 200-meter race, this curve being inside the regular track and permitting the race to be started on the straightaway.

The 400-meter race will have only one curve and this curve will not be nearly as sharp as our 440-yard tracks.

Considering the quality of the present day runners in all races from 200 meter to 3,000 meter, it is only natural to predict that several world's records will be established at Paris.

Named Olympic Coach

Michael J. Ryan of Colby college has been named as assistant coach of the American Olympic marathon team. Ryan will aid Lieut. M. K. Vidal of the United States army to condition the distance men who will seek to win the Olympic marathon for Uncle Sam.

OCKENDEN SUGGESTS BAN ON ROUGH CLUB

Says Game Can Be Saved Only by Such Action.

James Ockenden, the British golfer who is touring the country in company with Arthur Havers, the British open champion, believes that if golf is to be saved from vandalism there must be no artificial aids to the game permitted with regard to clubs.

"Most professionals think there is only one solution of the difficulty and that is to make the faces of all irons smooth and plain," said Ockenden recently. "This would, I am afraid, mean the scrapping of most of the clubs in use at the present time, but the position might be eased if it were decided that this new rule should not come into operation until, say, 1925. If this were done there would be a gradual rather than an immediate discarding of irons with patterns on the faces. These patterns are, of course, innocent of purpose, but the trouble is to prevent their exaggeration as has been done in the case of the punched club."

"An alternative proposal is that only the smooth face should be sanctioned in the championship. This would be equally effective in course of time. On the other hand the business of the ruling golf committee is to legislate for the game as a whole and not for any section of it. The interests of the 18 handicap men are just as worthy of consideration as those of the scratch player or others who take part in the championships."

The official marathon distance is 26 miles and 385 yards.

Boxing is now favored in the elementary schools in England.

Jack Kearns denies that Jack Dempsey's future is endangered by a recent operation. Then neither is Mr. Kearns.

The majority of American pugilists of the present day are of Jewish or Italian descent. For many years the Irish-Americans held the palm in this respect.

Walter Koppisch, Columbia's football and track captain, has started training again for the outdoor track season and for a berth on the American Olympic team.

By The Veteran Motorist

THE other day I had occasion to take the Boston Post Road, bound for Hartford, Springfield, and on to Maine, to spend a few days with the family. In the course of the journey, I stopped perhaps half a dozen times, to fill up with Socony Gasoline, and once to ask my way after dark.

As is my custom, I always stop and chin a bit with those genial boys, who invariably are found dispensing Socony products. On this occasion, as many others, I noted the frequency with which women drivers stop at Socony stations, and the invariable courteous and quick service which they receive from employees. As one of the boys put it, "A woman knows what she wants, and we always see that she gets it."

Tennis Balls Bear Monogram of Owner

The very latest of the season's novelties among tennis players are tennis balls bearing the monogram of the owner. The initials are made into the covering, which is of rubber, at the time of manufacture, and the cost is only slightly increased. These particular balls are stylish, and it is asserted by players that they will outlast the other balls by many games.

Diamond Squibs

Bill Killifer thinks he has a find in Joe Bush, pitcher.

If a pitcher occupies the rubber without having the ball in his possession it is a balk.

St. Mary's college, in California, is said to be the greatest producer of major league ball players.

The first professional baseball team in the country is said to have been the Cincinnati team in 1869.

The game improves. Ten years ago Charley Taft refused $700,000 for the Cubs. That sum would not purchase an infield today.

The Bridgeport club has purchased shortstop Phil Neeher from the New Haven team. Last season Neeher played with Hartford.

Joseph Heckle, star pitcher of the Syracuse university team last year, has been signed by the Detroit Tigers and will report immediately.

Fulton of the Kitty League is looking for another hang-up team this year and the management has made plans to enlarge the park.

Milton Ganton, the young pitcher with the Giants, is a brother of Alex

Gaston, the former Giant catcher, who is with Toledo this year.

In John Flavin, third baseman, late of Georgetown, Jack Dunn of the Baltimore Orioles believes he has picked up a coming star. Flavin is a good hitter.

Managers Tris Speaker of the Cleveland Indians and Stanley Harris of the Washington team are not contemplating placing a ban on their players playing golf.

Frank McCue, third baseman, has been obtained from the Athletics by the Minneapolis club. McCue played with Columbus of the South Atlantic league last year.

Nick Dumovich, southpaw pitcher, formerly with the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast Baseball league, will remain with the Chicago Cubs of the National league.

Bob Emble, veteran National league baseball umpire, won the president's cup, emblematic of the curling championship, at a recent tournament held in St. Thomas, Ont.

The first no-hit game of the season has been turned in by two Chicago Cub pitchers. Meyers and O'Neal held the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast league hitless in a game between the two clubs.

Preston Gray, manager of Rock Island, of the Mississippi Valley league, has signed Steve Hibbard, a Chicago semi-pro infielder, Edward Waytula, a pitcher, and Emmett Dorsey, a catcher and outfielder, also of Chicago.

Connie Mack is said to be overjoyed with the way young Simmons, purchased from Milwaukee, is going. Simmons is one of those youngsters big and strong physically, who seem able to hit any kind of pitching.

I Offer Girls

My aids to beauty, and to woman youth

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I had a rich, ambitious mother. She searched the world with me to find the supreme beauty helps.

They made me a famous beauty. And now, after 40 years in the limelight, they keep me a beauty still.

Other girls, in these same ways, can multiply their beauty. Other women can, to old age, keep their youthful bloom. I want to help them do so. The very helps that France gave me are now at your command.

I am very—very busy on the stage. But I am taking time to tell you the secrets of my beauty and my youth. And I hope the time will come when girls and women by the millions will enjoy what I enjoy.

32 helps in four
I found 32 things that women need to keep them at their best. French experts combined them in four applications. Thus beauty and perennial youth were made very easy for me.

One is my White Youth Clay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many use today. This clay is white, refined and dainty. Twenty years of scientific study have made it amazingly efficient.

I use White Youth Clay to purge my skin of all that clogs or mars it. It gives me that rosy, baby-like complexion. Blackheads or pimples, oiliness or blemishes are unknown to me.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, keeps the face skin ever like a girl's.

One application of my White Youth Clay brings almost unbelievable results. Many women seem to drop ten years. Continued use does wonders, as it did for me. No girl or woman who once tries this clay will ever go without it. The price is 50 cents and $1.

Two matchless creams
My Youth Cream is a cold cream, based on lemon and strawberry. It is made to embody all the best that science knows to whiten, feed, protect and smooth the skin. I use it after the clay. It is also my night cream, to apply on retiring. Day times I use it as a powder base. No one ever found a cold cream to compare with my Youth Cream.

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser. It contains no animal, or vegetable fat. It cannot accumulate in any way with the skin. When I wipe it off, all that clogs the skin comes with it. No other method cleans a skin like this.

Luxuriant hair
My hair is thick and lustrous. It grows under every year. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, never a touch of gray. This is due to my Hair Youth, another French creation. I apply it daily with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. It takes but a moment, and it does not muss the hair. I can do no greater kindness than to urge you to employ it. It costs 50 cents and $1.

All druggists and toilet counters supply these products which I use. The price is small. Every girl or woman, if she will, can have the benefits I get. Go and find them out. My Beauty Book comes with each. Edna Wallace Hopper, 526 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

BROADCASTING BLOUSE

DETAILS OF PRESENT MODE.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Just as one good turn deserves another, so is a worthy overblouse entitled to a skirt which will not only present it in the most favorable light, but which will be a fit companion for it. The skirt which has a waistband is not as inclined to preserve the straight line of the figure as one which is hung from a camisole. Realizing this, one astute importer has brought over some plated, wrap-around skirts which, hung from an underblouse, certainly solves the problem of dressing neatly and with dispatch.

all materials. Fine dimity and a satin finished cotton broadcloth are among the cottons with social standing, while both eyelet and Swiss embroidery are listed for summer wear. Both of these introduce color, red being the first choice, with blue and green next in favor. When Valenciennes or half Irish lace is used, which is frequently the case, it is often dyed. Monograms and crests are done in color on white and all manner of interesting inlay effects are relied upon to produce color, which is so essential to modes of the moment.

The summer blouse is just as likely to have no sleeves as decidedly abbreviated ones. Both models shown are the type of blouse worn with the tailored suit in lieu of a vestee. The first model savors a bit of militarism, which is an observation one might make of much that is worn just now. One feature which nearly all smart blouses have in common with dresses and suits, is a pocket, commodious enough to allow a gay handkerchief to peep out or a fan to dangle.

More and more women are affecting mannish neckwear. Four-in-hand ties are more or less general in gay crepes with monogrammed ends. Narrow Roman ribbons and regulation men's wear cravats are also worn, while the boutonniere is a recognized part of the smart tailored outfit. While grays and tans in plain or novelty fixtures are being worn in tailored suits, the strongest preference is toward black and white effects. White gloves, white gloves and all white or trimmed hats in white are used to relieve the all black suit. Some women are substituting white stockings for peach and flesh ones with black or tan shoes.

3,000 Pupils Hear Talk on Eye Care

Expert Brought Here by The Junior League Gave Valuable Talks Before Pupils of City Schools.

Nearly all of the 3,130 pupils who are registered in the eight grade schools of this city heard the talks on care of the eyes and prevention of blindness which were given on Monday and Tuesday by Miss Eleanor P. Brown of New York city under the auspices of The Junior League.

Miss Brown is secretary of the junior committee of the national committee for the prevention of blindness, the junior committee being the children's division of the national committee and having special interest in children of school age.

The talks given by Miss Brown in all the grade schools related to the care necessary to prevent infection of the eyes, safeguarding the eyes from accident while at play, and the prevention of eye-strain.

One alarming cause of accidents to eyes is the air-rifle, statistics showing that in one month thirty-three accidents had arisen from that cause. The statistics showed that it is not the owner of the air rifle who suffers injury or accident, but in every case the damage was sustained by an innocent third party—the innocent bystander.

The use of bows and arrows by boys is another cause of many accidents, while boys and girls who experiment with dynamite caps and cartridges which have been thrown away furnish another fruitful field of blindness.

Whenever an accident occurs to the eye, the boy or girl who is injured should consult an eye specialist. The doctor may be an expert in everything except treatment of the eye, but injuries to that important member should be treated only by a specialist in eye troubles.

Eye strain is a source of blindness which most often can be avoided. Reading under improper conditions or with improper light will bring eye-strain as quickly as anything else. It is improper to place a book or magazine flat upon the desk in reading, and to have the light shining directly in the eyes. Miss Brown stressed the importance of having the light come from above and over the shoulder, and to hold the book or magazine in a proper position. It is unwise always to attempt to read in the dark, or when daylight is waning because at that time the darkness is increasing second by second, and consequently the strain increases each instant.

Movies are another source of eye-strain, said Miss Brown, especially in growing children. During the formative period of youth the eyes have not acquired the muscular strength which comes with later years, and eye strain resulting from watching the motion picture screen is more severe than upon the eyes of older people. Once or twice a week for the movies is all that a young person should attempt on account of eye-strain which not only affects the health of the eye but also the general health of the entire body.

Miss Brown also stressed the importance of paying attention to small eye troubles. It is trifles which grow into more serious eye difficulties, and eye troubles should be corrected at their inception. Neglect may cause blindness, and both on their personal account and on account of their families nobody can afford to lose their eyesight, entirely aside from the pleasures of life which are to be derived from good vision. When eye troubles first appear, an eye specialist should be consulted and his advice followed. He has made a special study of the subject, he knows what the result will be if the troubles are neglected, he knows how to correct such troubles, and his advice should be followed.

It is unwise to say that a person will outgrow eye trouble. While nature performs marvelous feats, she must be assisted. And when such assistance is rendered, the handicap of impaired vision can be overcome. As an instance of this, Miss Brown cited the case of one of the famous baseball players, a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who cannot see to play baseball unless he is wearing glasses. The danger of ball-playing while wearing glasses is greater than to a person who is not compelled to wear them, but this famous player proves not only what people can accomplish when they have determination, but also that it is necessary to invoke outside agencies in order successfully to overcome a handicap.

Miss Brown's talks were listened to with close attention by the pupils in each of the schools.

This is the first talk on care of the eyes which has been given before the pupils of the city schools, and The Junior League, realizing the importance of the matter, decided to give the pupils the benefit of the valuable work which is being conducted by the national committee for the prevention of blindness. Literature prepared by that committee and distributed through the junior committee is being made use of by The Junior League of Kingston in connection with the work of The Junior League nurse among children of pre-school age.

Duck Had Free Ride

When Allen Barker of Nashua, N. H., went to his garage to get his machine, he saw a large white duck perched on the bumper. Barker recalled that late the night before while returning from Lowell, something white, resembling a piece of paper, struck the front of the machine about ten miles from Nashua. Believing that the paper would blow off, he continued home. The duck was none the worse for the trip.

Fire Holds Up G. L. F. Program

A fire which burned down the cooking plant of the George Urban Milling Company in Buffalo recently has temporarily suspended the activities of the G. L. F. Exchange in its program of cooperation with farm women through the New York State Home Bureau Federation.

The Exchange was requested through a resolution passed at the last annual meeting of the Federation to broaden its program to include the distribution of a whole wheat flour which would enable farm women to follow the teachings of the State College of Agriculture in feeding their families. They asked for a whole wheat flour with good keeping qualities.

In response to the request the G. L. F. Exchange, working with the George Urban Milling Company developed a new process whole wheat flour and a considerable farm demand was brought about as a result of the activities of the state and county Home Bureaus.

The burning of the plant where the whole wheat flour is processed will delay the program slightly. Farm women, according to the specialists at the State College, are taking a keen interest in the proper feeding of their families and recognize the advantages they enjoy in having cheaply at hand milk, eggs, butter, cream, fresh vegetables and fruits. They are working to make available in country districts the other foods not raised on their farms, necessary to the best health of their children.

Beautiful Lisbon

—Hanging Gardens of Pedro de Alcantara, Lisbon.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington D. C.)

Lisbon is running true to form. It very seldom gets into the newspaper headlines which almost daily carry the names of Paris and Rome and Athens and even Madrid. Its Latin sisters True, Lisbon is not an outstanding figure either politically or commercially, though in the latter field its importance is very much greater than most persons would guess. But if beauty and attractiveness and cleanliness—civil virtues which rank with the greatest—were of news value, Lisbon would probably lead all the rest.

Sun-kissed on its eleven hills, Lisbon has all the delights of a salubrious climate; stretching for five miles along the banks of the mighty Tagus, it offers the finest harbor in Europe, seven miles from the open sea, it is protected from the Atlantic's gusty storms; it is the center of a rich and ancient province, the capital of a nation and the seat of culture and learning.

Lisbon is all this and more. It is the largest and most strategically located seaport on the remunerative ocean trade lanes between London and the Mediterranean, and between London and Cape Town.

Lisbon is also the central metropolitan storehouse for Portugal's outlandish colonies. Into its markets pour the tributes of the vine-clad Azores; the rich wines of Madeira; the tropical delicacies of the Cape Verde, the richest of tobacco from Dakar; dyes and gums from Guinea; cotton, gold, and rubber from Angola; ebony, ivory, and grains from Mozambique; tea, rugs, and ivory from Goa, in India; more tea, silks, and fabrics from Macao, in China and choice drugs and spices from Malayan Timor.

Lisbon is far from being decadent; it has increased in population more than 40 per cent in 20 years.

From a ship's deck the whole waterfront of Lisbon is visible; 12 miles of clean shoreline stretching out before one. To the west one can see as far down the coast as the green-gold suburb of Paeo d'Arcos and the little hill-town of Carcavellos perched above it, although a mile or two beyond.

To the east, up the Tagus the eye follows the city until it sweeps out of sight in a great bend to the northward beyond the noble buildings of the Asylo de Dona Maria Pia. In direct line beyond the Ajuda palace loom the "Paps," three hilltops each between 400 and 500 feet high—one topped by a beacon for the benefit of mariners coming up the river channel, and one by a wireless station which keeps Lisbon in touch with the world beyond the seas.

Fine Praça do Commercio.

Once ashore and striding across the huge square, flanked as it is on three sides by magnificent colonnaded buildings, a triumphal arch of monumental proportions on the side opposite the river bank, and a striking equestrian statue in the center, one wonders why other large seaports do not do these things and why beauty and practicability are not more often wedded in municipal undertakings, especially waterfront undertakings.

The Praça do Commercio, once famous as the Terreiro do Paeo, or place of the palace, known to sailors the world over as "Black Horse Square"—this last because of the statue—is one of the rebuilding projects of the Marques de Pombal, to whom Lisbon owes her rebirth after the catastrophe of 1755.

The bronze horseman and steed in the Praça are effigies of King Jose and his favorite charger. The great government buildings which flank the square on three sides are the chamber of commerce, the Palace of Justice, the customhouse, the House of India, the general post office, the war office and other administrative departments.

Passing under the triumphal arch, one immediately finds himself in one of the cleanest and most interesting cities in Latin Europe. It is clean in more respects than the mere absence of rubbish in the streets. To be sure the streets are clean, for Lisbon has one of the best sewerage systems of any European city. It also has a wonderful water-supply system, thanks to Pombal. The buildings are clean; the shops are clean, so are the shopkeepers and their stocks. The street urinals are clean; yes, and so are the ragged beggars.

But, what counts most, Lisbon, as Latin or southern European cities go, is morally clean. It is not immaculate or sinless, but no large city abroad has fewer homicides, less thieving, or is troubled with social problems of such insignificance in comparison.

Lisbon is interesting as a study in municipal planning. It is an index of the versatile mind of its builder, Pombal, who was in mental combination an engineer, an architect, a financier, an administrator and man of vision. His civic schemes were a century, and in some details two centuries, in advance of contemporary building methods. His laws for the construction of buildings to forestall damage by earthquake tremors and shocks are still enforced and they have saved the city several times since his day.

Cidade Baixa and Alcantara

From the Triumphal Arch of the Praça to the Rodio, or Praça de Dom Pedro Quarto, one traverses that part of the new city, the Cidade Baixa, planned to be the location for genteel shops and high-grade mercantile houses. Eight parallel streets running north and south, crossed by eight others running east and west, make a checkerboard district accessible from all sides and in the mind of Pombal, who gave the streets names suggestive of the trades and industries to be housed thereon, this would be the shopping section de luxe of Lisbon.

Until about 1850 Pombal's plan was adhered to but since that date the adoption and extension of electric car lines has made other parts of the growing city regional trading centers and the shops are scattered here and there along the avenues and in less congested sections.

How to gain the heights on either side of the Cidade is a matter of some concern to strangers. One may, of course, walk, but to the casual visitor this is a back-breaking method. Other schemes include more intriguing methods. Cogwheel electric cars ply up and down the inclined portions of the hillsides, but where the banks are sheer and perpendicular huge elevators (ascensores) have been installed.

To go from the shopping district of the Cidade to the upper elevations of the Alcantara district to the west one need only board the elevator in the Rua de Santa Justa and take a hop up to the iron bridge leading to the Largo do Correo.

Lisbon's most beautiful street is the Avenida da Liberdade. In its broad expanse are alevs of trees, myriads of flowering shrubs, subtropical plants, palms, kiosks, bandstands, flower beds, fountains, rockeries, statuary, promenades, groves, and every appealing construction and growth to attract not only human beings, but all manner of birds and insects. The Avenida thrills with the songs of birds and hums with the drone of bees; butterflies flit among its vivid blooms and colored fish sport in its pools and fountains.

Bordering the Avenida are hotels, theaters, cafes, shops, and, as one leaves the vicinity of the Obelisk, residences and clubs.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 30.—Heaviness marked trading at the opening of the stock market today. The fact that the first quarterly earning statement of the U. S. Steel Corporation did not live up to expectations led to heavy selling on independent steels. Halfheartedness characterized trading. Professional speculators for the decline launched a vigorous drive against leading industrials and motors, losses of nearly 2 points in these issues being numerous.

"Bootlegged" Coffee

To restrict the use of coffee in Germany, Frederick the Great made it a government monopoly, and only those holding government licenses were permitted to roast coffee—publicly.

Illicit coffee roasting and bootlegging of the beverage were problems turned over to a corps of "coffee-smellers," who went hither and yon with their noses in the air trying to detect infringement of the law.

The government "coffee-smellers" were the butt of ridicule and anathema among the crowds in the coffee "speakeasies."

An old Arabic manuscript, written in Mecca in the year 1511, says: "Come and enjoy the company of coffee in the places of its habitation; for the divine goodness envelops those who partake of the feast."

"Grief is not found within its habitations. Trouble yields humbly to its power."

"It is the stream in which we wash away our sorrows. It is the fire which consumes our griefs."

"Drink of it confidently and give not ear to the speech of the foolish!"—Detroit News.

Area Involved in War

Of Europe's approximately 4,000,000 square miles of territory, seven-eighths was directly involved in the World war. For Africa the fraction is larger, 82 out of 33 parts having been in belligerency. Asia, with her 17,000,000 square miles, shows twenty-four-twentieths of her territory involved, while Australia was completely in the throes of war. In North America, four-fifths of an area of nearly 10,000,000 square miles is occupied by two of the great countries that were in the struggle. Only about one-half of South America remained nominally neutral. Therefore of the 52,000,000 square miles of the globe's area, exclusive of Antarctica, more than 45,000,000 square miles belong to the belligerent nations, and the remaining few millions were more or less affected.

She had a high opinion of herself and regarded customers as really rather nuisances.

DISCOVERS FARMER IS GREAT OPTIMIST

Traveler Finds Man Who Can Handle Any Situation.

Shuffled along the Berkshire hills in the friendly little town of Washington. After a visit, writes a contributor, to our daughter at school there, I wanted to hire a motor car to take my wife and me over the mountain to Waterbury, 25 miles away, to catch the afternoon train for Boston. But it was Memorial day; the local baseball nine was to play its first game with its great rival, and not a "taxi" could we find. At last a farmer in the town, George Titus by name, consented to take us over in his little car. As we were about to start he said that his son was to pitch for the Washington team, and I protested against his missing the sport.

"Well, now, you come along," said Mr. Titus, reaching down and giving the crank a short, friendly turn. "I've been waitin' to get over to Waterbury all the spring to see my sister; and there's another good thing about it, too; George can always pitch a better game when dad ain't lookin' on."

After eight or ten miles we began to ascend the mountain. The road was fair, but rain had begun to fall. As we were going down the other side a cloudburst overtook us and followed us to the very bottom. In that five or six miles it rained "forty days and forty nights!" The rain literally came down in sheets. It was terrific! The water overflooded the thank-you-mams and washed them away so that the road became a mountain torrent. It was magnificent, but it was not good motoring.

"This must be the greatest downpour of modern times," I said to Titus.

"Ye-es," he replied judicially, glancing off the road a second, "yes, guess 'tis. There's some good things about it, though."

"There are? Well, what can they be?"

"Well," said he, "it's comin' straight down, don't blow any. And there ain't no thunder or lightning."

We got into Waterbury in time for the train, but an hour later than Mr. Titus had expected; it was then too late for him to go back over that washed-out road in the rain. I offered him his expenses for the night, but he declined.

"No, no, I'll stay with my sister, and it won't cost a cent," he said. "There's another good thing about it, too. Gives me a chance to see her husband. He works at the electric light plant and don't get home till nine o'clock. They'll be tickled to death to have me."

We could well believe it. How blessed is the community that possesses a few practical optimists, calm, brave, hopeful souls like George Titus. My intimate little adventure with him was commonplace enough, yet I am sure that he can meet any tangled situation in his family, in his village or in the world with unconscious courage and good cheer, and that he will always find "another good thing about it, too."—Youth's Companion.

Meaning of Ferry

The original meaning of the verb to ferry is conveyed by the couplet in an early English poem, which describes how the king, gone a-courting among his faithful subjects, was "kaht bi the heles, feryed out by the feet."

In those days the verb to ferry meant to carry, or as in the cited case of the king, to drag out.

The use of the noun ferry as a boat or vessel for carrying passengers or goods across a body of water was an afterthought.

The application is quite logical. Ferrying is carrying, only that it is now restricted to carrying over a body of water. By the same token it would be extremely difficult to "ferry" a king out by the heels.—New York Sun.

Wigs to Patch Bald Heads

"Wigs are being more worn nowadays than formerly," a London wig maker stated. "Young men whose hair has become thin perhaps in only one spot are having it 'patched.' I have made and fitted many such patches for men who are not yet thirty." A nerve specialist stated that the conditions of modern life in big cities—worry, sedentary occupations and general nerve strain—are responsible for an increase of baldness at a comparatively early age.—London Mail.

Other Way Around

He was an argumentative local attorney, and was crushing an opponent's case. "Gentlemen," he said, "you may say, with Lawyer Smith, that this is a case of six of one and half a dozen of the other. But I say no!—pause for emphasis—no; it is nothing of the sort. It is exactly the contrary."

Those Brave Americans

"The rapidly increasing divorce rate," remarked the newcomer, "proves that America is fast becoming the land of the free."

"Yes," said his friend, "but the continuance of the marriage rate shows that it is still the home of the brave!"—West Virginia Wesleyan Pharos.

Are You Depressed—Run Down--Discouraged?

TONE up your sluggish organs with this liquid

In almost every case of depression—when a person is run down, tired out, discouraged—the trouble is due to an unhealthy physical condition and a slowing up of the vital organs. This condition is invariably traceable to constipation, stomach disorders, auto-intoxication and faulty digestion.

Unless the digestive organs are kept functioning normally they become sluggish, fail to perform their work of assimilation and elimination, and the food you eat creates gases and acids which poison the entire system and break down your health. This condition is usually accompanied by indigestion, dyspepsia, headaches, heartburn, nausea, loss of appetite, insomnia and general depression. It is essential to health that you keep the organs of your body functioning normally at all times. Your druggist is now offering an amazing liquid which stimulates, tones up and normalizes the entire system. In all cases of digestive troubles it will bring quick and permanent relief; otherwise your money will be refunded.

This wonderful liquid is called Royal Digesto. It is quickly assimilated and carried to the affected parts with surprising rapidity. It corrects the poisons, releases the gases which cause pain and distress, acts on the accumulated waste in the intestines and keeps the bowels normally active. Get a bottle of Royal Digesto today on the money back guarantee, and try it. You can get it at Ten Broeck, Fritz & Kingston Central Pharmacy, Connell Drug Co.

A preliminary meeting was held Monday at the "Y" but only four Sunday schools were represented. The league needs at least six teams to get under way, and an eight team league would be even better. The four schools represented at the last meeting were: Roadout Presbyterian, Fair Street Reformed, Wurts Street Baptist, and Trinity M. E. The meeting next Monday evening is called for 8 o'clock at which time final decision will be reached whether to have a league or not.

One of the weakest points in home life in the present day is the lack of understanding of human relationships.—Flora Rose.

What you eat and what I eat is everybody's business because it determines what the race is going to be from the point of nutrition.

Soon it will be mosquito killing time. Learn how in H 124, a free pamphlet, from the state college at Ithaca, on household insects.

Maybe the vacuum cleaner is out of reach in price, but one home convenience that costs little is a better measuring cup than the old cracked teacup which has lost its handle.

First aid to the home laundress is found in an old baby carriage or a child's express wagon. Use it too trundle the heavy basket of clothes which are being hung on the line.

The action of Vincent Richards, Yonkers (N. Y.) tennis star, in joining William T.
